

Human Resources Policies

Employees must follow the organization's code of conduct and workplace policies.

Employees are expected to maintain professional behavior and respect colleagues.

Leave requests should be submitted through the approved HR process.

Employees should keep their personal and emergency contact information up to date.

Performance reviews are conducted periodically according to organizational policy.

Training programs may be assigned based on role, business requirements, and development needs.

Employee records must be handled confidentially and accessed only by authorized personnel.

Employees should report workplace concerns through the approved reporting channels.

Attendance and working-hour requirements must be followed according to company policy.

HR policies may be updated when business, legal, or organizational requirements change.